

Around the Salish Sea

Written by Mark Kiemele

Wednesday, 27 October 2010 16:08

TFN elder promotes bike connections

TFN elder promotes bike connections

Tsawwassen First Nation elder Ruth Adams likes to dream big.

An idea of hers, to connect TFN, the town of Tsawwassen and the nearby BC Ferries terminal has recently been getting publicity in the local media.

But her idea for the bicycle route called the Great Blue Heron Way does not stop in her neighbourhood. She would like to see it someday link First Nations throughout the Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island.

As a start to realizing her dream, Adams will be meeting with BC Ferries staff and the Vancouver Area Cycling Coalition to put together a plan for better, a safer, use to the causeway to the ferry terminal by pedestrians and cyclists.

Copyright © 2010 Klahowya - The Voice of the Members of the Naut'sa mawt Tribal Council. All Rights Reserved. Designed by JoomlaArt.com.